Traffic Sergeant Nick Remackel Was There

On Wednesday, February 16, a five thousand dollar car caught fire in front of the Hotel Tulsa.

Sergeant Remackel was on the job, as usual, but there wasn't a fire extinguisher to be found in all the fine cars thereabouts.

The day was saved by the driver of a lowly flivver, who passed out a fire extinguisher in time to save the first car and probably others.

Are YOU depending on the chance that some other fellow will come along with a fire extinguisher at the precise instant the fire devil takes a crack at you?

Unless You Would Rather Have the Insurance Money Than Your Car, Better Invest in a Fire Extinguisher. INVEST is the Correct Word.
